

Candidate Statements for ICC Chair of Finance

- Ei Mon Hlaing
  - Before I joined ICC as an intern, I asked myself why I should join this and what I benefit from there? To start with, my initial thought of joining ICC was to cultivate hands-on leadership experience that supports my transfer and strengthens my skills in decision-making. However, following my experience as an intern, I realized that building good friendships and being part of an organization or group makes you feel valued and boosts your confidence, which pushed me further to definitely become an ICC officer. I genuinely feel that becoming a part of the ICC would help me achieve the things I have mentioned above. As an ICC finance intern, I joined the ICC executive meetings held by ICC, finance meetings held by ICC Finance Committee, and volunteered for almost all the events held by ICC, which has given me some of the knowledge and experience required to become an ICC chair of Finance. To add further, the reasons why I would be a good fit for this position is that I have a solid foundation in the field of business and finance, and have always aimed to become an ICC Chair of Finance since becoming an intern.

- Chhenghour Ly
  - I have always been interested in learning more about how things come together for student activities and events, and being involved with the ICC seems like an opportunity to experience this for myself. In high school, I was Vice President of the Student Mentor Council, where I advised class presidents from grades 7 to 12 and assisted with problems they were experiencing. I enjoyed working with others to find solutions, organize projects, and ensure that events went off without a hitch. I believe that being involved with the ICC would give me a similar chance to make a difference by helping out wherever it is needed and improving communication between teams. By being involved in this way, I hope to continue learning more about collaboration and organization while also making a difference in the campus community. I would like to be a part of a team where I can watch, get involved, and contribute ideas that make a difference, even if it is simply by keeping things organized, listening carefully, or being there to lend a hand when problems arise.

- Ravi Sekhara
  - My name is Ravi Sekhara and I'm a freshman here at De Anza College. Being involved with on-campus life is a value that I want to practice and share with other like-minded students. One of my biggest regrets in high school was not joining clubs sooner, having learned my senior year what a difference being involved in campus life made. I hope to not have that same regret here at De Anza, and make many new connections. I have several key attributes that would make me great in this position. At De Anza, I am an intern with the ICC Finance Committee, where I've been able to work on projects, learn the financial code, assist with the revision of forms, and learn and experience what the ICC Chair of Finance does. I also have taken classes on finance and other related subjects, and currently work at the cashier's office at De Anza, a position where I have furthered my understanding of all sides of the financial operations that happen here. As chair of finance, you would find in me an open-minded person who listens to all sides and considers others' opinions, works diligently, and does not procrastinate on my work.

- Sundy Zaw
  - I would like to be a part of ICC as its finance member because I study finance and I want to gain practical experience in fund management. In this way, I can implement theoretical knowledge from lectures into practice and help student clubs financially. I am suitable for this role since I am a diligent and accurate person. Due to my courses in business and accounting, I gained enough knowledge on working with finance-related issues and handling money properly. Moreover, I am skilled in time management, as I manage many aspects of my life, including studying and my different jobs. I am also an effective communicator who likes to cooperate with other people. In this case, I will help to make the use of the funds transparent and fair. Also, I am open to learning new things about finances. Overall, I am keen on acquiring experience while helping the clubs by using funds effectively."
